MEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, July 9, 1870.

Poisoning by Prescription. There are several pleasant ways of dying, One is to bleed to death in a warm bath. Drowning is said to be eminently satisfactory. There is much to be said in favor of the gallows-when one gets the hang of it. Most of us would prefer old age, only that it is so excessively dissatisfactory to one's heirs. But probably the quickest and least-expected method is that of being officinally murdered, poisoned by prescription, as has been the fate of too many invalids in New York within the past few years. Early in the week, for instance, a lady residing in Brooklyn died from the effects of a preparation of laudanum different from that called for by the prescription written for her by her physician. The preparation which she swallowed was compounded for her by a druggist's clerk, who, according to the evidence at the trial, was on duty eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, and slept, the remaining six, on a sofa on the premises. The prescription, like all prescriptions, was written in Latin, and was taken to the store at midnight, at which hour the fagged clerk was roused from his first deep slumber. The question as to which deserves the most blame-the wretchedly overworked clerk who compounded the potion, or the cruel and criminal proprietor who committed such important trusts to the hands of a fledgling to whom he denied the first conditions for rendering good service-is one that will easily be answered by all who sympathize with moderate hours for work and liberal hours for rest and recreation. The latest case of pharmaceutical manslaughter occurred yesterday, and bears equally hard both upon the keeper of the drugstore and the patient who sent for the medicine. A women sent by her young child a verbal message for a grain of quinine. The child asked for a grain of morphine, which the druggist sent and the woman swallowed. Proper antidotes were applied in time, and fortunately the woman recoveredno thanks to her own common-sense or the discretion of the druggist. The frequency with which these drug-store disasters occur excites. upon the part of the nervous patient, a trepidation more than sufficient to counterbalance the good effect of the proper medicine, supposing him to be so fortunate as to have it sent him. One goes to get a prescription prepared at a drug store, now-a-days, with something of the same apprehension with which one enters a train of cars for a distant journey. Death equally lurks in the palace-car and the pill-box, the express and the elixir, and there is no certainty in what shape you will continue to exist after having done with either. These harmlesslooking sleeping-drops in which I place my faith may be so many drops of death. This gentle alterative may produce in double-quick time the alteration of the grave. The skull and

"Tem Brown." Mr. Thomas Hughes, better known as the author who inserted into "Tom Brown's School Days" the very bone and marrow of healthy and natural boyhood, is expected to be in this city within three or four weeks. He is a man whom it will be impossible to lionize, because of the heartiness, the freshness, the unassumingness of his sentiments, and because of the direct antagonism which the whole tenor of his life and writings has put him into with everything that is merely fashionable and fleetingly popular. It is by the middle-class homes and hearth-stones of New York and American, but principally of Philadelphia, society that Mr. Hughes will be most enthusiastically welcomed; for Philadelphia, distinctively a city of homes, is just the city to most cordially appreciate the beauty and goodness of the fireside teachings of his books. Among the chief objects of his visits will be the public schools of the principal American cities, and I am sure there is not a United States school-boy that has read "Tom Brown" that will not wish to treat his eyes to a sight of the originator of the gentle and the strong characters with which that work is filled.

Captain Mayne Reld. The readers of Captain Mayne Reid's books for juveniles will be sorry to hear that this voluminous author is at present a patient in St. Luke's Hospital, and that the nature of his malady is such as will subject him to a painful and perhaps dangerous operation. Captain Reid is unfortunately one of that numerous class of gifted men who, by the time they reach the meridian of life, find that they have run through as much money as would have kept them, with a little husbanding, luxuriously until the end. He has exhausted at least one very comfortable fortune, and has saved little or nothing at all of the very large sums he realized from the sale of his novels and adventures composed for the young. In appearance and manners he obeys the rule which so many celebrities do-that of being exactly the reverse from what the imagination would naturally picture them. He is about the medium height, and rather spare, has a florid complexion, silvergrey hair, a nervous manner, is fluent in speech, and is abundantly conscious of being Captain Mayne Reid. He is young enough to write several works equal in popularity to "The Young Marooners," and ought to have learned by this time lessons sufficiently bitter to teach him to lay up for the rainy days that come to the pantomimist, in the New Bowery Theatre.

It is supposed that on Wednesday evening, upon all of us sooner or later.

FITLER'S VEGE-TABLE RHEUMATIC REMEDY, the prescription of one of Philadelphia's oldest regular physicians and professors. It is positively the only standard specific before the public, being composed of pure and harmless vegeta-ble ingredients solely, containing no minerals, poisonous vegetables, or injurious drugs. It is warranted, under oath, to have permanently cured ninety-five in every hundred cases treated in the past four years, a result un-paralleled in the annals of medicine. To protect sufferers against imposition, deception, quacks, and injurious nostrums prepared by unskilful, uneducated, and unscientific hands, a printed legal form of guarantee, containing name of patient and exact stated quantity to cure, properly signed and sealed, will be given to every patient desiring it, without extra charge, and in case of failure to cure the money refunded. All sufferers should examine the plan of guarantee, which insures a positive cure, or costs nothing for the trial. The safety of this offer, made by Dr. Fitler, is insured to him only by the merit and infallible curative power of this remedy. Names and references of incurable cases, where the money paid has been refunded in full. given at Dr. Fitler's office, where the diploma of Dr. Fitler, received from the University of Pennsylvania A. D. 1833, is subject to public inspection, with the diploma from the Medical Institute, 1833, and the additional vouchers of his professional skill as a Physician and Professor of Chemistry, together with letters and testimonials of leading physicians, cler-gymen, judges, senators, bankers, merchants, etc. etc.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA,

Sufferers from these painful complaints have only themselves to blame if they permit their frames to be tortured, when a sovereign cure like Dr. Fitler's wonderful Bhoumatic Remedy is within such easy reach of even the humblest in the land. As to its sure live properties in rheomatism, gout, and neuralgia, no cap, who is not wil-fully blind, can entertain the shadow of a doubt. Thensands of the worst cases known to the medical faculty have been cured by it, and hundreds of the cartificates given in its favor are from judges, lawyers, physicians, merchants, trademen, etc., in our very midst, who are living evidences of its miraculous power. It is said every where, and rheumatic and neuralgic sufferers own it is themselves to make a trial of its virtues.

to his wife, he repaired to the foot of Broome street and threw himself into the river. It has been erroneously stated that he had squandered several fortunes-a statement that is untrue from the simple fact that he never had several to squander. About ten years ago, when he was about thirty-five years of age, he was worth upon his own acknowledgment $30,000, and I presume had the sum been more he would not have concea'ed that fact. At the hour of his suicide he was suffering from the combination of several griefs and annovances. among which were serious trouble with his wife, want of money, and a disappointment with respect to an intended emigration to Aus-Sents in the New York Parks.

With the exception of Central Park, the seats in the public parks of New York are very little better than the ferruginous toad-stools that adorn the squares of Philadelphia. They are made of wood, much of which is decayed through the influence of dampness, will accommodate but two people, and are destitute of backs. In spite of these deficiencies, not one of them is empty of a fine night. The homeless nomad curls himself upon them and goes to sleep. Biddy and James sit there with arms intertwined until 10 o'clock strikes. Lonely brooders who have nothing to do but kill time. while memory plays the suicide, crouch there with bent backs, their eyes fixed on the ground and their lips draining the life and spirit out of the cigar and cigarette. If there must be such things as loafers, lovers, and brooders, geniality pleads that they be given comfortable quarters to loaf, and love, and brood in. The propinquity which our tele-a-tele chums, or chance acquaintances, is at least better than the spectral and unhappy isolation to which the lonely toad-stools of the Philadelphia equares condemn them. Bohemianism, nomadism, proletarianism, call it what you will,

is one of the institutions of human nature, and no great evil would result if it were allowed occasionally to pick up such crumbs of comfort as fall from the overstocked tables of the re-spectable and the rich. A bench without a back is almost as bad as a back without a spine, and the ignorant irony which furnishes it is only not as exquisite as that which promises a bed of

THE WORRY OF AILING CHILDREN !- Their ill-humored fretting when too peevish to play and not sick enough to give up-how familiar is this phase of childhood to every parent! Frequently, too, there is apparent a want of appetite, a depression of spirits, an evident loss of strength and vitality, and still no development of specific disease; but with these symptoms to deal with, you may be sure a good, safe tonic, such as Dr. Jayne's Vermifuge, will, in a short time, bring the little patient around and restore the general health. This preparation, besides, relieves Dyspepsia in adults, and thoroughly eradicates Worms in old and young. Every mother
